Thanks to our workers

With this last picture the students of Kansounkpa send a warm “THANK YOU!” and at the same time an invitation to Germany and ask all supporters to visit them here in Benin and see the kind of impact their help is creating. They are eagerly awaiting their visit.

I also thank all friends for the continuous support. Together we change the world every time a little bit. Just like in the story that a friend wrote for me:

After a storm, a little boy takes a walk at the beach and sees the many starfish that the sea had washed up on. He bends down, picks up one and throws it back into the sea. Then he takes the next one and throws it back into the sea as well. A man watches the boy. After a while he speaks to the boy and says: "What kind of difference does it make if you keep throwing one by one into the sea? Look at how many starfish are lying around. " The boy looks at the man, then at the many starfish on the beach. Then he bends down and picks up another starfish. He replies to the man: "For this one - everything will change." and throws it back into the sea.
